

Committees

Description:

The congregation of Holy Cross Church is served by a number of standing committees that report to the church council. Each committee is chartered by the council with a specific set of responsibilities. Committee members are members of the congregation and serve as volunteers. Members are appointed by the church council.

Committees are one place where you may be able to find a place of ministry in the church family. Some committees are small (perhaps one or two people) and are assigned specific functions within the church family. Others touch larger areas of the church's ministry, and so require more organization, personnel, and availability.
